Jerry

It was great to see so many members take me up on my Challenge to do something new with wood. Seven members took me up on the Challenge, which means they now have a one in seven chance of winning. Let's see more of you take me up on the Challenge and lessen their chances of winning.

We will be meeting off site again. This time it will be at Tech Works to get an update and tour of the Makers Space. There is another article in the newsletter with more details on the meeting and an e-mail will be sent with details also.

As I wrote about in the last newsletter, I would be attending Weekend With Wood. My wife and I had a great time attending the event. We parked the car on Thursday and did not move it till we came home. We were shuttled to all the different events and locations. On Thursday night, Duluth Trading hosted a reception for the 250 woodworkers and 90 spouses. We met the Wood Magazine staff and most of the instructors for the various sessions. All of the sessions were at the Meredith Publishing Headquarters. Friday night we were taken to Acme tool where we could shop of course with a discount and were treated to a meal of pork burgers prepared by the Iowa Pork Producers.

I was able to attend eight sessions over two and a half days. The instructors were the staff of Wood Magazine and different craftsman brought in from around the United States. The woodworkers attending came from all over the US. I talked to wood workers from Missouri, California, New Mexico, Arizona, West Virginia, and several other states.

After the sessions on Saturday, 140 woodworkers participated in the Charity Build. During the Charity Build, volunteers made 100 cremation urns for the Iowa Veterans Cemetery. Liberty Hardwoods donated the red oak and Rigid and Ryobi donated the tools to make the urns.

Epilog Laser made and donated medallions for the four branches of the armed forces to attach to the urns.

Sign up for the 2018 Weekend With Wood I believe will start in September. Take a look at the topics covered when they are announced. My wife and I had a great time and I learned how little I know about woodworking.
